

We're Falling Hard for These New Autumn Jewelry Trends

Fall is finally here! And with it, tons of new autumn jewelry trends. Here are four of our favorite looks below, from runway trends to the latest best-sellers.

Sometimes less is more. While there's no denying that there's beauty in simplicity, that's not what we're here to discuss today. This fall, it seems like bigger and blingier is far better! New trendlines are leading to larger statement earrings and necklaces, diamond and gemstones clusters, and intricate details. Keep these popular styles in mind as we gear full steam ahead toward the holiday season.

Here are four of our favorite autumn jewelry trends

Large Striking Earrings

Twisted and textured, these simple drop earrings can be dressed up or down.

These chandelier earrings feel retro and are quite awe-inspiring.

Diamond & Gemstone Clusters

These pink and opal-inspired earrings are perfect for October babies and my personal favorites in this collection.

Soft Organic Forms

Match nature's burnt autumnal hues with these beautiful rose gold free-form leaf earrings.

Vintage-inspired neckpieces balance curvature with elegance. And a lustrous pearl accent adds some classic charm.

Intricately Ornate Details

These two pieces were submitted by Stuller product designers into the 2018 MJSA Vision Awards. The Fire Teardrop Pendant Necklace above placed 2nd in the 4 or more Years in Business category and features a 20+ carat topaz center stone. It is exquisitely adorned with yellow, burnt-orange, and garnet-red colored diamonds, and set in an 18k yellow gold pendant.

Again, the morganite pendant above features dainty, detailed diamonds against rose gold in a suave, curvy design.
