

Stuller Celebrates America Recycles Day

America Recycles Day, observed on November 15, is a nationally recognized day that encourages us to recycle and purchase recycled products. Stuller is excited to partner with jewelry designer and Metalsmith Society founder, Corkie Bolton to celebrate America Recycles Day. You're invited to go green and win!

Before we introduce you to Corkie, check out this video about how Stuller is committed to various recycling efforts.

Meet Corkie Bolton

Corkie's love for jewelry making started when she was in high school, and it became her lifelong passion. She eventually launched her signature line, Corkie Bolton Jewelry, in 2016 followed by her Metalsmith Society.

With more than 184,000 followers, Metalsmith Society is a growing community within Instagram where jewelers support each another, ask questions and share their techniques. Corkie embraced the spirit of "community over competition" and has been highly successful in this endeavor. It's a place where kindness and education flourish.

Corkie is obsessed with craftsmanship and creating a piece to be treasured forever. She says, “I strongly believe in making heirloom quality, handmade products that are an investment.” When making her stunning pieces, Corkie uses Stuller’s SCS-certified 100% recycled fabricated metals.
